

William Manning

My name is William Manning.

As the operator of one of the Internet's root nameservers, I have a material interest in the on-going stability of the Internet. For endusers, this equates to the principle of least surprise. A consistent, reliable name resolution is a fundamental component of a stable and secure Internet.